Introduction

Monadelphous Group Limited (ACN 008 988 547) is an Australian company, publicly listed on the Australian Securities Exchange (ASX:MND), registered at 59 Albany Highway, Victoria Park, Western Australia, 6100, Australia.

This statement has been developed in accordance with the requirements of the Australian Modern Slavery Act 2018 (Cth) and sets out the actions taken by Monadelphous Group Limited and its wholly owned and controlled entities (referred to collectively in this statement as ‘Monadelphous’, the ‘Group’, the ‘Company’) to identify, assess and address modern slavery risks in its operations and supply chain.

Modern slavery involves grave abuses of human rights and serious crimes. It includes human trafficking, slavery, servitude, forced marriage, forced labour, debt bondage, deceptive recruiting for labour or services and the worst forms of child labour.

This is Monadelphous’ fourth Modern Slavery Statement. It outlines the Company’s governance, processes and activities undertaken during the year ended 30 June 2023. References in this report to ‘year’ or ‘period’ refer to the financial year ended 30 June 2023, unless otherwise stated.

Overview

Modern slavery remains a global issue, affecting approximately 50 million victims around the world (2023 Global Slavery Index (GSI)). The Company operates within a number of countries with a higher inherent risk for modern slavery, and with a global supply chain, is cognisant of its objective to not cause or contribute to modern slavery through its operations and business dealings.

Monadelphous respects the human rights of every person involved in its operations, supply chain and the communities in which it operates. It does not accept any form of modern slavery in the conduct of its operations and in its supply chain and is committed to ensuring that all workers are treated fairly, ethically and with respect.

Monadelphous has a modern slavery framework, aligned to the Group’s risk management framework, which describes the policies, processes and tools in place to prevent, detect and respond to incidents of modern slavery and human rights abuses in its operations and supply chain.

Monadelphous’ greatest exposure to modern slavery risks remains within its supply chains. The Company takes a risk based approach to managing these risks, and throughout the year continued to enhance its modern slavery framework, associated processes and tools. Supplier assessment processes were enhanced, applying learnings to improve supplier risk identification. The Company continued to engage with its direct supply chain, undertaking further detailed onsite capability assessments of key suppliers, inclusive of labour rights and working conditions criteria, and commenced its journey towards gaining greater transparency of the risks within its lower-tier supply chain. Additional controls were introduced into international recruitment processes and modern slavery awareness training continued to be delivered to all Company employees, with specific training provided to employees operating in geographies with an elevated risk of modern slavery.

Monadelphous recognises that continual improvement is key to reducing the risk of modern slavery. The Company continues to refine its roadmap of actions to ensure ongoing improvement in identifying, assessing and addressing the risks of modern slavery. During the year, the Company adjusted its roadmap to reflect changes in its business structures and modern slavery risk profile. The Company maintains its progress in alignment with planned activities.

To date, the Company has not identified any instances of modern slavery in its operations or supply chain.

During the period, approximately 87 per cent of its supplier spend was under negotiated subcontract agreements and Company procurement terms and conditions.

Identifying risks of modern slavery

Monadelphous adopts the concepts set out in the United Nations Guiding Principles when identifying the modern slavery risks in its operation and supply chain and considers ways in which its activities may Cause, Contribute or be Directly Linked to instances of modern slavery. The Company's interpretation of these concepts and examples are included below.

Cause	Contribute	Directly Linked
The risk of the Company causing a human rights impact through its direct actions.	The risk that the Company's actions may contribute to another party causing a human rights impact, including actions or omissions that may facilitate or incentivise modern slavery.	The risk of the Company being linked to a human rights impact it has not caused or contributed to, as a result of a business relationship.

Operations

Monadelphous has undertaken a detailed risk assessment and determined there is a low risk of the Company causing instances of modern slavery within its direct operations.

The majority of Monadelphous' employees are employed directly under permanent, fixed-term, part-time or casual contracts, or under enterprise bargaining agreements, which significantly lowers the risk of modern slavery. Company employment contracts meet or exceed the applicable employment legislation in the countries in which the Company operates.

The Company acknowledges that some parts of its operations utilise labour through third party providers and subcontractors, and it may or may not have direct supervision over these third party workforces and transparency of their terms and conditions of employment. The Company has assessed the risk of modern slavery occurring to be greater for labour suppliers that operate in geographies and industries with a higher prevalence of, and vulnerability to, modern slavery.

The following areas of the business have been identified as those which have a greater potential for the Company to Contribute to, or be Directly Linked to, modern slavery practices due to its use of labour providers and subcontractors in high risk geographies and industries (by reference to the Global Slavery Index).

Operation (Relevant Wholly Owned and Controlled Entities)	Description of Services
Papua New Guinea (Monadelphous PNG Ltd) GSI Vulnerability Score 2023: 79 (up from 62 in 2018)	Provider of construction and industrial maintenance services in the Papua New Guinea minerals and energy industries utilising local subcontractor service providers.
China (Inteforge Pty Ltd, Moway AustAsia Steel Structures Trading (Beijing) Company Limited, Inteforge Engineering & Fabrication (Tianjin) Co. Ltd) GSI Vulnerability Score 2023: 46 (down from 50 in 2018)	Provider of industrial fabrication management services, operating with a range of preferred manufacturing subcontractors located in China.
Mongolia (Monadelphous Mongolia LLC) GSI Vulnerability Score 2023: 50 (up from 43 in 2018)	Provider of construction services in the Mongolian resources industry utilising local Mongolian subcontractor labour.
Philippines (outsourced services) GSI Vulnerability Score 2023: 66 (up from 60 in 2018)	Outsourced professional services are provided to Monadelphous through partnerships with Filipino outsourcing labour companies located Manila.

Supply chain

Monadelphous applies risk assessment criteria to identify suppliers with a high risk of modern slavery, including industry, geography and spend. Suppliers operating within specific industries with known labour risks and those recruiting vulnerable populations are considered to have elevated risks of modern slavery.

High-risk industries identified within the Monadelphous supply chain include:

Manufacturing	Manufacturing often occurs in geographic locations with high prevalence of labour rights abuses including, but not limited to, forced labour, child labour, unsafe working conditions and excessive overtime. Manufacturing workers may also have limited resources or methods for raising and resolving grievances. Further, there is a risk that products may be manufactured using raw materials produced by workers subjected to modern slavery. The Company may be Directly Linked to human rights impacts through the actions or omissions of its suppliers and/or their suppliers. The Company may also Contribute to human rights impacts if its procurement practices apply excessive pressure on suppliers, such as aggressive cost reductions or shortened delivery times.
Construction	The construction industry, specifically in geographic locations with high prevalence of modern slavery, commonly utilises migrant, unskilled and low paid workforces. These workforces have an increased exposure to labour rights abuses including, but not limited to, forced labour, child labour, unsafe working conditions, human trafficking and excessive overtime. The Company may be Directly Linked to human rights impacts through the actions or omissions of its construction subcontractors and/or their suppliers. The Company may also Contribute to human rights impacts, such as excessive overtime, if its contracting practices apply excessive pressure on subcontractors, such as significantly shortened construction schedules.
Recruitment Agencies and Labour Hire	Recruitment and labour hire industries, particularly those recruiting migrant and base skilled workers have a higher risk of modern slavery abuses including, but not limited to, human trafficking, forced labour, debt bondage and deceptive recruitment. As a result of labour shortages, the Company has increased the use of recruitment agencies and labour hire providers to source its workforce. The Company may be Directly Linked to human rights impacts through the actions or omissions of its suppliers and/or their suppliers.
International Shipping and Marine Transport	The Company utilises marine transportation for the majority of items procured and manufactured overseas. The Company is aware of elevated risks of modern slavery within the international shipping industry, including but not limited to, forced labour, withholding of pay and below minimum living wages, poor working and living conditions and lack of access to appropriate grievance processes. The Company may be Directly Linked to human rights impacts through the actions or omissions of its shipping suppliers and/or their suppliers.

In addition to high risk industry, suppliers are identified to have a higher risk of modern slavery where operating in geographies with high vulnerability to modern slavery by reference to the Global Slavery Index. Monadelphous utilises suppliers located in Papua New Guinea, the Philippines, China, Vietnam, and Mongolia, countries recognised by the Global Slavery Index as having a higher vulnerability to the risk of modern slavery.

The country map below, represents the risk of modern slavery for each of the geographies from which the Company sourced goods or services (of a value greater than $100,000) during the year.

Mitigating risks of modern slavery

Monadelphous has in place a modern slavery framework articulating the Company's commitment to respecting human rights and outlining its approach to preventing, detecting and responding to the risks of modern slavery in its operations and supply chain. The Company's Group Risk and Assurance function is responsible for the regular review and maintenance of the modern slavery framework, working in collaboration with operations throughout the Group.

The modern slavery framework applies to Monadelphous Group Limited and its wholly owned and controlled entities.

Stakeholder consultation and collaboration

In developing its modern slavery framework, corporate and operational stakeholders across the Company's Australian and overseas operations were consulted through workshops and interviews to ensure pertinent risks were identified and appropriately considered. Additionally, a third party provider with expertise in supply chain risk was engaged and a range of modern slavery organisations were consulted in the development of the framework.

The framework is reviewed on an annual basis in consultation with stakeholders across the business, including representatives from the Company's procurement, legal, contracts, human resources, risk, equipment management and health and safety teams. Examples of consultation and collaboration with various stakeholders in relation to the Company's modern slavery processes during the period includes:

- Implementation of additional welfare checks for internationally sourced employees in conjunction with human resources and mobility teams (refer Labour practices section);
- Identifying modern slavery risks within new supply chains in collaboration with procurement and equipment management teams (refer Training and awareness section);
- Contractual and legal teams revising, communicating and implementing updated supplier terms and conditions template sets (refer Supplier contractual terms and conditions section); and
- Procurement teams updating supplier self assessment questionnaires and implementation within the supplier onboarding and assessment processes (refer Supplier due diligence section).

The Company also continues to engage the same third party provider to complete regular supplier due diligence and general risk screenings. Further, Monadelphous continues to maintain its connection with human rights advocacy groups, periodically validating its approach and analysing data in the maintenance of its framework.

The Company's commitment and expectations in regard to mitigating modern slavery risk is communicated across the business to its owned and controlled entities through a number of channels outlined in this statement, including the overarching modern slavery framework, which encompasses policies and procedures, as well as education and training.

Policies and governance

The Company's modern slavery framework is aimed at preventing, detecting and responding to incidents of modern slavery and human rights abuses in its operations and supply chain. The framework aligns with the Group's overarching risk management framework and consists of the following elements:

1. Control environment – culture and values, policy and governance
2. Risk identification and assessment – identifying and assessing modern slavery risks relevant to the Group's operations and supply chain
3. Risk management and control activities – managing and controlling modern slavery risks in the Group's operations and supply chain
4. Information and communication – providing information, education and awareness to employees, suppliers, customers, investors and other stakeholders
5. Monitoring and reporting – assurance, reporting and continuous improvement of processes

The Monadelphous Board, supported by the Group Risk and Assurance function, is responsible for overseeing the Group's governance and risk management practices, which includes the modern slavery framework. Underpinning the framework are a suite of policies outlining the Company's commitment and expectations in relation to modern slavery.

Monadelphous reviewed its suite of policies during the year as part of its annual policy review, and enhanced its Code of Conduct and Supplier Code of Conduct for updated trade laws and sanction regimes. The Company also revised its Sustainability Policy outlining its commitment to sustainable business operations, including fostering a safe, inclusive and respectful workplace where people of all backgrounds, skills and cultures can work together collaboratively, and reach their full potential.

The policies described below confirm the Company's commitment to addressing modern slavery risks within operations and supply chains. They are conveyed to Company employees within employee inductions, training programs, leadership communications and are enforceable in accordance with the Company's Code of Conduct and employment agreements. Copies of these policies are available on the Company's website at www.monadelphous.com.au.

Human Rights Policy	Outlines Monadelphous' commitment to respecting the human rights of every person involved in its operations, supply chain and communities.
Sustainability Policy	Outlines Monadelphous' commitment to achieving sustainable growth by ensuring the safety, wellbeing and development of its people, the delivery of outstanding service to its customers, caring for the environment and communities in which it works and providing superior returns to shareholders.

Supplier Code of Conduct	Outlines Monadelphous' minimum expectations of the conduct of its suppliers in the areas of labour, human rights, integrity, ethics, health, safety and environment.

Labour practices

Monadelphous engages its employees under fair, just and ethical employment contracts and does not partake in high risk or unethical labour engagement practices. The Company remains guided by the following labour engagement principles:

- Not utilising migrant or seasonal labour
- Not charging employees to work through recruitment fees or imposing fines
- Not retaining employee original identification documents or preventing employees from moving freely
- Not using child labour
- Not undertaking deceptive recruiting practices

During the period, the Company enhanced its processes for protecting the rights of employees sourced through international recruitment and labour providers. Additional controls and employee welfare checks were implemented to ensure that employees are not subjected to unethical recruitment practices such as, but not limited to, deceptive recruiting, payment of recruitment fees and/or debt bondage. A specific feedback mechanism was also implemented to provide candidates with an supplemental process to share their recruitment experiences, concerns and grievances in a safe and confidential manner.

Training and awareness

The Company remains committed to continually improving awareness of modern slavery as a critical aspect in identifying and addressing risks.

The Company's Code of Conduct and Acceptable Workplace Behaviour training includes modern slavery and labour rights awareness content and is required to be completed by all Company employees (including the Board and executive management) during onboarding, and on an annual basis during employment tenure. In addition, select Company leaders (including executive leadership and general management) and employees operating in high risk locations, as well as those frequently interacting with suppliers and subcontractors, complete additional modern slavery awareness training. This training assists those employees in identifying potential signs of modern slavery during supplier interactions and reiterates how to report suspected or actual concerns.

Further to regular training sessions, several modern slavery risk information and awareness sessions were provided during the period to procurement teams and specialist working groups responsible for the Company's decarbonisation initiatives. These sessions provide employees with examples of specific modern slavery risks associated with the clean energy sector (i.e. modern slavery risks within the solar panel and Li-ion battery supply chains) and recommendations to incorporate supplier human rights controls into procurement decisions.

Customer engagement

Monadelphous works with customers who share its values in respecting the human rights of every person involved in its operations, supply chain and the communities in which it operates.

Customer collaboration continues to provide the Company with valuable insights into current industry labour and human rights practices and effective approaches to investigating, controlling and responding to modern slavery risks. The Company applies these insights to enhance its own policies and procedures.

Monadelphous participates in the disclosure of its own modern slavery practices to customers to assist them in meeting their modern slavery commitments and reporting requirements. During the period, approximately 20 customer modern slavery surveys were completed.

The Company also participated in a customer initiated audit of Monadelphous' modern slavery framework to assess the effectiveness of its controls. The audit included a range of leadership and employee interviews at Company facilities and worksites, and a review of Company process documentation. No concerns or indications of forced labour were identified during the review.

Reporting of human rights concerns

Monadelphous maintains an independently facilitated Integrity Hotline service, where employees, contractors, suppliers and members of the public can report instances of actual or suspected unethical or unlawful conduct associated with Monadelphous operations and supply chains.

During the period, the Company enhanced its Integrity Hotline and reporting framework to improve its accessibility for international employees and external parties. An additional three foreign languages were added to the website, and toll-free and local telephone numbers were implemented to remove the possible potential impediment of international call costs.

Supplier contractual terms and conditions

Monadelphous' suite of procurement and subcontract terms and conditions templates include a contractually binding requirement for the supplier to comply with all applicable labour rights laws, practices and modern slavery requirements. The templates also require suppliers to comply with the Monadelphous Supplier Code of Conduct, which outlines the Company's expectations of supplier behaviour.

During the year, the Company updated its labour hire and recruitment contract templates in line with changes to broader procurement templates, to reinforce its modern slavery expectations and provide the Company with a contractual basis to investigate alleged or actual breaches.

The Company continues to work with its direct suppliers to improve understanding and compliance with the modern slavery and Supplier Code of Conduct clauses in its terms and conditions. Very few requests were received from suppliers to amend or remove modern slavery related clauses. Where changes were requested, the Company clarified its expectations and assessed the applicability of requirements with the supplier, negotiating an outcome commensurate with the supplier's modern slavery risk profile.

Procurement terms and conditions are available on the Company's website at www.monadelphous.com.au.

Supplier due diligence

Monadelphous undertakes a range of supplier due diligence and assessment activities to identify areas for further focus and applies scalable treatment strategies to address any identified concerns.

The Company is focussed on identifying and addressing potential modern slavery risks within its direct supply chain. To date, the Company has not identified any concerns within its direct supply chain, however acknowledges the potential for modern slavery risks to reside within its indirect supply chains. The Company has commenced working with direct suppliers to improve visibility of modern slavery risks within their supply chains (the Company's lower tier supply chains) and how these risks are being assessed and addressed.

Supplier self-assessment questionnaire (SAQ)

To improve the transparency of supplier modern slavery practices, Monadelphous requires suppliers to complete a modern slavery self-assessment questionnaire (SAQ) during onboarding, with almost 650 SAQs completed by suppliers during the year.

To ensure ongoing improvement, the SAQ was subject to a full revision applying internal learnings and best practice recommendations provided by a number of human rights advocacy groups. The updated SAQ provides the Company with improved insights into supplier modern slavery risk profiles and maturity of supplier controls to manage these risks.

In support of the Company's commitment to improve the transparency of its lower tier supply chains, the updated SAQ also requires suppliers to disclose the extent of their supply chain visibility and top direct supplier products and services, supplier locations and the modern slavery assessments they have conducted of their suppliers. Although only recently implemented, this information is already improving the Company's transparency of its lower tier supply chains, enabling the identification of high risk areas for further supplier engagement and investigation.

To date, supplier responses to the SAQ continue to indicate varying degrees of modern slavery awareness, appreciation and maturity of controlling processes. SAQ data indicates a greater awareness and transparency of modern slavery related risks by Australian suppliers, likely due to a stronger focus in this area in recent years, in comparison to suppliers located in developing countries.

Any concerns identified during the SAQ process results in further direct supplier engagement, clarification and education to improve transparency and influence of supplier practices.

Supplier due diligence screening

Monadelphous applies its modern slavery risk assessment criteria, which is based on industry category and geography, to its supplier database to identify high risk suppliers for detailed supplier due diligence screening. For suppliers identified as high and medium risk, further due diligence may be undertaken by a third party provider specialising in supply chain risk, involving a detailed review of publicly available information to identify any social or labour rights concerns and an assessment of the supplier's modern slavery and labour rights policies.

During the year, the Company collaborated with its third party supply chain risk assessment provider to enhance supplier due diligence screening criteria, applying additional focus on identifying supplier ultimate ownership risks and the presence of adverse media and legal exposures.

Onsite supplier assessments

When identifying and onboarding new high spend suppliers and/or suppliers providing critical services, the Company undertakes supplier capability assessments which may include onsite visits to supplier facilities. During the year, an additional tranche of onsite capability assessments were completed for suppliers operating in geographies and industries with a high vulnerability to modern slavery. This included manufacturing and fabrication companies operating in China and Vietnam, supplying structural, mechanical, piping and electrical components. Supplier factories, workshops and worker accommodation quarters were visited to identify signs of labour rights abuses or unacceptable working conditions. No concerns were observed during the onsite supplier assessments completed during the year.

Periodic supplier assessment

Acknowledging that a supplier's risk profile may change over time, the Company also undertakes periodic assessments of existing suppliers which trigger risk and spend thresholds. These assessments typically involve a review of the supplier's publicly available information, direct supplier engagement seeking updated SAQ responses and dialogue regarding key modern slavery risks and controls.

Treatment strategies

Monadelphous applies treatment strategies to address concerns identified during supplier onboarding assessments, periodic supplier assessments and other due diligence activities. During the period, approximately 5 per cent of suppliers assessed were subject to the application of treatment strategies due to concerns with the supplier's initial SAQ response. The nature of concerns identified largely required clarification of supplier SAQ responses and practices, which continued to provide opportunities to engage with suppliers to validate understanding of modern slavery risks, and in some instances improving awareness and suggesting further controls and practices.

Monadelphous applies the following treatment strategies to address modern slavery concerns identified during the assessment process:

Clarification – where additional visibility or context is required.

Throughout the period, suppliers were routinely contacted to seek clarity and confirmation in relation to their SAQ responses.

Education – raising supplier understanding and awareness of modern slavery risks.

Engagement with suppliers regarding the SAQ or Supplier Code of Conduct continued to include elements of education regarding modern slavery risks, mitigation strategies, as well as discussion around Monadelphous' new modern slavery contractual terms and conditions.

Enhanced assessment – additional supplier assessment activities such as onsite focused audits of labour rights and hiring practices.

No enhanced assessments were undertaken during the period, however a tranche of onsite supplier assessments were completed as noted above in 'Onsite Supplier Assessments'.

Relationship termination – where zero-tolerance concerns are identified.

During the period, all treatment strategies were effective in addressing the Company's concerns and there were no instances of supplier termination as a result of modern slavery related issues.

Remediation

Monadelphous has in place a reporting framework, through which employees, contractors, suppliers, subcontractors and members of the public are able to report instances of actual or suspected unethical or unlawful conduct without fear of recrimination or reprisals, to the extent permitted by the law.

The Company is committed to fully investigating all concerns raised, and to rectifying any wrongdoing which it may have contributed to or caused to the extent practicable, and to the principle of fairness in all investigations. Parties reporting concerns or participating in investigations will not be subjected to unfavourable treatment and will be provided support appropriate to the circumstances of the concern.

Within its international operations, the Company employs translators to support non-English speakers in raising concerns and seeking support. In addition, the Company recently commenced training its Health, Safety and Human Resources teams in Mental Health First Aid to complement its existing response strategies and to provide immediate care for potential victims of human rights abuses.

Throughout the year, the Company continued the socialisation of its reporting framework to its employees and stakeholders through its policies, supplier code of conduct, employee training programs and targeted communication campaigns.

During the year, no human rights or modern slavery concerns were identified within Monadelphous' operations or supply chain.

Measuring effectiveness

The Company remains focused on the application and refinement of its modern slavery framework and associated processes, and continues to consult with internal stakeholders to evaluate and improve its effectiveness.

The Company also continues to evaluate the suitability of its approach by benchmarking its framework against guidance provided by environmental, social, governance (ESG) and human rights advocacy groups, its customers and the investment community.

The effectiveness of the Company's actions in addressing its modern slavery risks is assessed through a number of methods, including but not limited to:

- Independent reviews of its modern slavery framework and associated procedures to evaluate effectiveness in identifying and mitigating risks;
- Assessing changes in the risk profile of its operational and supply chain;
- Increased employee awareness and appreciation of modern slavery risks;
- Consultation with internal stakeholders;
- Feedback from external parties;
- Collaboration with other organisations and human rights advocacy groups;
- Benchmarking performance against external stakeholder expectations; and
- Achievement of its modern slavery related objectives.

Some examples of these activities undertaken during the period include:

Objective	Activities and Findings
Independent reviews	The Company participated in a customer-led comprehensive audit of Monadelphous' modern slavery framework to assess the effectiveness of controls in mitigating modern slavery risks. The framework was assessed as effective in managing modern slavery risks with no concerns or indications of forced labour identified. Further, a range of best practice improvement recommendations were provided for the Company's consideration, which have been implemented where deemed appropriate.
Employee training and awareness	Following a number of successful modern slavery training campaigns in previous periods, the Company has observed an overall increase in employee awareness and consideration of modern slavery risks in day-to-day operations. Modern slavery is considered in a range of business activities including labour sourcing strategies, supplier selection, net zero procurement initiatives and acquisition and joint venture partner assessments.
Collaboration and benchmarking	The Company's modern slavery statement was subject to review by a number of investor ESG advisory bodies. Where practical, the Company sought specific feedback and guidance from these bodies to validate the alignment of its modern slavery framework and statement with external stakeholder expectations. These collaboration and benchmarking activities continue to assist the Company in communicating its modern slavery response strategies and furthering the depth of its modern slavery statements.

Continuous improvement

Monadelphous remains committed to the continuous improvement of its modern slavery prevention, detection and eradication journey. A range of additional actions have commenced, or are planned, and will be reported in subsequent statements. These include the below activities.
